Weekly Reflection.

The seeing of Faith.

A blind man was invited to attend a friend's wedding. The couple were being married in a village church that was well known for its picturesque qualities and its beautiful grounds. The guests commented on all of this at the reception afterwards and again when the photos came back. When the blind man heard all this talk, he thought to himself, "But didn't they hear the bell?" For him, the bell that pealed to welcome the bride and celebrate their marriage had been magnificent. The air was filled with its vibrating jubilation. He was amazed at the atmosphere of joy and solemnity that the bell created for the occasion. Everyone else seemed to have missed that part. Although he could not see, perhaps because he could not see, his hearing was very alert. He heard the beauty that others missed. The sounds that passed others by touched him very deeply.

We see echoes of this in the blind beggar, Bartimaeus that we meet in today's gospel. Even though he too was blind, he saw Jesus with the eye of Faith. Even when he was rebuked for expressing his faith out loud, he refused to be silenced. He had the courage to keep on Professing his faith.

We could do worse than take Bartimaeus as a model for our faith journey. Like him we are blind beggars who need to keep on crying out to the Lord who passes by, so that we can see him more clearly and follow him more nearly.

Catholic Bishops Pastoral Letter Welcoming Migrants to Ireland: during the Autumn General Meeting of the Bishops' Conference, the bishops of Ireland published a pastoral letter on welcoming immigrants, entitled A Hundred Thousand Welcomes? "A Hundred Thousand Welcomes?" invites the faithful to reflect on how we welcome immigrants in contemporary Ireland, and the theme is informed by the parable of the Good Samaritan. The pastoral letter's call to action encourages people to welcome immigrants and strive to help all newcomers belong to the life of the community; to reject voices that sow division; and calls on State authorities to provide more resources to address local social and economic shortages that have been neglected for too long. This letter, together with a longer version is available on the Bishops' website www.catholicbishops.ie and copies are available in each of the churches and the Parish Office.
